WE NOMINATE

Olga Tomec Smith, one of this education-minded community's most able and seeing educators, who this fall is doing what nine out of every ten teachers some day dream of doing—directing a small, vital school in which the emphasis can be on teaching. As headmistress of the 25-year old Chapin School (formerly Mrs. Chapin's School), Mrs. Smith in her early 40's is having the time of her life. She is not only worrying with children, parents, parent-trustees and teachers about all-important problems of the moment but is also blueprinting the continued development of a coeducational nursery-to-eighth grade school in such a way that it can grow gradually with Princeton and do a steadily more effective job of providing its students with the "basic tools of learning".

With some two decades of solid teaching experience behind her, Mrs. Smith, wife of an officer of the First National Bank of Princeton, shies away from such meaningless terms as "progressive education" and has no use for "educational spoon-feeding". In the four months since her appointment, her concern for strengthening the teaching of fundamentals has been reflected in a series of curricular innovations, including "structural arithmetic" in the lower grades and revamped science and social studies programs in the entire school. And she combines administrative duties with the direction of the upper grades and supervision of two of her special interests, mathematics and remedial reading.

One of six children of a prominent Trenton industrialist, and a member of the Class of 1930 at Miss Fine's School, Mrs. Smith "majored" in German and "minored" in mathematics at Wellesley with the Class of 1935. Early in her career she started laying the groundwork for her present post by serving almost two years as director of guidance at Finch Junior College, New York City, where she combined practical work in student personnel administration with qualifying for her master's degree in Teachers' College, Columbia University. From 1937 until 1942, a year "past" her marriage, she was associated with Trenton public schools, teaching mathematics in "Junior 4" and subsequently directing both vocational guidance and visual education at "New Junior 2".

Mrs. Smith, as gifted in languages ("Czech", French and German) as she is in mathematics, taught algebra and geometry and administered the testing program at Chapin for a period of seven years and also worked overtime with many Princeton youngsters in a variety of subjects, perfecting the tutorial techniques (and "little tricks") that are the hallmark of the exceptional teacher. In recent years she has undertaken volunteer assignments in remedial reading in the Child Guidance Clinic in Trenton and has been deeply interested in the Princeton Social Service Bureau's Mental Hygiene Clinic, a service she helped organize. In 1954 Mrs. Smith completed a three-year term on the Township Board of Education.

For understanding all that a despairing teacher meant when he wrote: "Teaching is the worst paid, the most misunderstood, the least advertised and yet the most rewarding of all ways of life"; for radiating the kind of leadership that is so desperately needed by elementary education; for insisting that in education—as in all else—"first things must come first"; she is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

This Is Princeton

A WEAK WEEK

Few and Far Between. What kind of a week has it been in Princeton, this week? Well, it certainly wasn't a week like all weeks, to paraphrase one of TV's most paraphrased commentators, because Princeton has come to expect news of real import each week, and it simply never came this week. Possibly, this was a lull week before some storm weeks.

Regardless of what it wasn't, this week definitely was a week for the World Series in Princeton. Businessmen, "thinking ahead," conveniently their lunch hour (s) after 1 p.m., starting time for the weekday games of the scorching seven-game series. The Music Shop rented TV sets for $1 per day to promote them during the fall classic and obviously they were "on loan" all over town. Princetonians didn't seem to have much on their minds but baseball.

That may be a slight misstatement of fact, for football was here and a bit of attention was being focused on the pigskin, already bounding as crazily as ever. Princeton's Tigers appear to have an honest - to - goodness "sleeper" in the "new" Ivy League, but ardent boosters were saving their steam until the defending champs take care of revitalized Penn and "poison-to-Ivy" Colgate. And the Ivy group had them pretty mixed up anyhow, since only Princeton and Yale, after two weekends of play, remain unbeaten.

This was a quiet week for politics in Princeton. With the big election just a month away, local candidates took their cues from the national leaders and paused to study battle lines before the final push. They knew there were many speeches and rallies on the calendar for the next several weeks (see Topics of the Town) ,so they caught their breath before letting it loose in oratory. Township hopefuls even stopped for a moment to make sure who is battling whom (see box, this page.)

GOP, But Not MVD. To say the least, it was an unusual—if not exhilarating—week in Princeton. There were no reports or rumors of new firms moving into the area's "growth" picture. There were no incidents of particular note on the police blotters in either Borough or Township. And the doings in the municipalities' two traffic courts were mild by comparison, too (see Topics of the Town). Township Magistrate Louis R. Gerber received attention only after announcing that political stickers on the windshields or front windows of cars are illegal, that he will remain "bi-partisan" in judging such violations and that "it's better to give the money to the candidates' campaigns than to the Motor Vehicle Division."

Both Borough Council and Township Committee held regular monthly meetings this week, but the results were likewise routine (see Topics of the Town). In fact, two city officials even had enough time to debate the cost of "no parking" meter bags, trying to determine which city de-

Voters in Princeton Township will have to know the names and numbers of all the players before heading for the polls next month. That fact was made eminently clear this week as one candidate admitted he isn't sure who he is running against, or exactly how, and a Township official thought twice before explaining the complexities. For the complexed, here's his explanation:

For the two Township Committee seats vacated by Hugh D. Wise Jr. and Richard H. Wood, whose terms were due to end this year anyhow, Democrats William B. Bretnall and Ansley J. Coale will oppose Republicans James G. Campbell Jr. and John S. Mount. The two candidates receiving the highest number of votes, party notwithstanding, will be elected for regular three-year terms.

For the single, unexpired Committee term of John H. Wallace Jr., who resigned last month with two of three years remaining, it will be Democrat William G. Whatley against Republican Charles A. Hurford against Independent Mrs. Ruth Kleinberg, winner take all. (Mrs. Kleinberg, not a candidate at primary time, must run for the unexpired term rather than the regular term in order to get her name on the official ballot).

partment should include funds for same in its budgets.

The lack of excitement, other than that provided by the series via TV, seemed almost everywhere. For the first time in many weeks, it was possible to walk down Nassau Street and realize that Suez had been crowded out of the limelight to the extent that it wasn't on any tongues. It was something like poetic justice that the week should be sandwiched between a pair of slow, determined British plays at McCarter (see News of the Theatres).

Even Princeton's teenagers reflected the kind of week it was. Observed one: "Gosh, Elvis Presley hasn't come out with a new record all week. How utterly dull!" And this, believe it or not, right on the heels of his phenomenal record-selling in September (see Question of the Week, page 13). Viewed from all angles, this was a lull week before some storm weeks.

PERSONALITIES

Carolyn Baumgartner, Republican, 109 Cedar Lane, featured vocalist now on a four-month, government-sponsored global tour with the Westminster Choir (her "first vote" absentee ballot has been arranged), and Stanley W. Ackley, Democrat, 24 Charlton Street, professor of economics at Rutgers University, whose interesting views on the coming national election appear in this week's addition to Town Topics' popular "Why I Plan To Vote" series (for their opinions, turn to page 14.)

Alan W. Richards, Princeton-Kingston Road, ubiquitous photographer who will fly to Australia next month on a special pictorial assignment to cover the International Olympics of 1956 in Melbourne. While "Down Under," he will work primarily for the U.S. Olympic Committee ,but also will take color photos to be used as permanent murals in the new Princeton 'Y' building and some 800 color slides for future viewing by Princeton school and civic groups.

Norris Houghton, New York City, gifted Princeton University graduate (and classmate of Joshua Logan '31) who has taken time off from his managerial duties at the Phoenix Theatre in New York to add to a long list of similar accomplishments by designing the setting for McCarter-bound "The Sleeping Prince"—the handsome interior of a London legation in 1911.

ROUND-UP

Princeton is still growing rapidly, and Town Topics continues to keep pace with eight more pages this week than the comparable issue in October '55 and a current circulation over 9,200. . . . Other "progress" items, Princeton Manor, just behind the Shopping Center, is not too far away from the unveiling of the first four of its 64 proposed $20-$25,000 homes and the once-hazardous intersection at Locust Corner on the Princeton-Hightstown Road is a thing of the past, thanks to traffic separation islands, blinker lights and an expanded travelway. . . . Princeton High is going big-time, too, as indicated by the scheduled broadcast of its football game with Trenton High over WTNJ-Trenton (1300) this Friday afternoon.

Westminster Choir College coed Barbara Sarvis remained on the "missing" list as Town Topics went to press, apparently but not positively having eloped with her Wynnewood boyfriend 12 days ago . . . Congratulations to Eric Goldman, Princeton University professor of history who recently made the non-fiction best-seller roster with his easy-reading study, "The Crucial Decade, 1945-1955," with the hope that he climbs back on again soon. . . . A date for the first trial test of Princeton Hospital's elaborate disaster plan, now contained in a 54-page booklet that resulted from six months of thinking, outlining and meetings, will be set at a session of the Hospital Disaster Committee next week.

The trial of Antonio Pirone Jr., who took a near-hit pot-shot at Township Patrolman Richard V. Steiner in August, is still a thing of the future, though the Grand Jury has referred the case to trial and continued the defendant's bond at $5,000. . . . The Loomis property behind 302 Nassau Street, consisting of eight lots, reportedly has been sold and, though Mrs. Robert Loomis has declined to name the new owner, it is believed that acquisition of additional adjoining acreage (including the filled-in Spruce Street quarry) is under consideration by the same buyer. . . . Two speakers of note, Dr. S. F. Singer, designer of the famous MOUSE satellite, who will discuss "scientific instrumentation problems for an artificial earth satellite" at an open-to-the public meeting in Frick auditorium at 8 tonight, and Judge Libby E. Sachar, who will talk about "Our Unwanted" at the annual meeting of the New Jersey League for Planned Parenthood on October 23.

Tony Lane, genial host of the renovated and enlarged Applegarth Inn near Hightstown, has returned to the air lanes with his Air Lane Trio. . . Now, for the first time, the talented musicians are appearing direct from the inn for a half-hour of dance melodies each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 10:30 p. m. over WBUD-Trenton (1260). . . No trial date set yet in the "bridle path" court hassle, but the battle is expected to continue by November at the latest. . . Good news this week for golfers, already hard-pressed for playing room, as indicated by the long waiting lists at Springdale and Hopewell courses: A new, 18-hole public course, supported by the county, will be ready for its initial "Fore!" next summer on the old airport site (Bear Tavern Road) above West Trenton . . . Quizwhiz Mrs. Mary E. Hoadley of Witherspoon Terrace "was too hoarse from talking about it" to give details, but facts are that she quit at the $5,000 level on the Jack Barry show, "21", choosing safety first.

BOROUGH COUNCIL

Bids and Future Thoughts. Almost two hours were required for the disposition of business at Borough Council's regular October meeting on Tuesday evening, but none of the accomplishments was highly significant—at least, for the time being. Only acceptance of a low bid on improvement bonds for the Borough's new firehouse - garage earned immediate note.

The financial firm of Byrne & Phelps, New York City, proposing an interest rate of 2.55 on bonds maturing in 20 years at $280,453.65, won endorsement by Mayor P. Mackay Sturges and the six Councilmen. Work already has begun on the Harrison Street building which received close bond bids from eight banking houses interested in such municipal growth.

With an eye cocked toward the none-too-distant future, Council also did the following:

● Heard the first reading of the "anti-sin, clean-up" ordinance aimed at salacious literature on newsstands, similar to plans already laid by Mercer County and Princeton Township.

● Okayed a resolution for the request of $17,505 in state aid during 1957 for construction of the contemplated Hodge Road "extension" between Bayard Lane and John Street, a job which cannot be considered seriously until the YMCA - YWCA turns over promised land deeds to the Borough.

● Urged new coordination between local utilities and the city in the matter of cutting into Borough streets without authorization or full approval of plans and, at the same time, urged the Borough engineer to insist that his policy be upheld by the utilities. A new impasse in relations between the various groups was cited as a result of Princeton Water Company's recent digging and pipe - busting on Spruce Street.

● Authorized additional traffic counts at the intersection of Harrison Street and Hamilton Avenue to determine the need for a traffic light and, if necessary, to influence the state with said figures.

Approved a request by the Tenacre Foundation for an automatic alarm system at police headquarters in Borough Hall, based on last summer's tragic fire at the institution on The Great Road, but referred all such future requests to the Council's police and fire committee.

● Authorized a Young Republican Club-sponsored parade, complete with bands and torchlights, for 7:30 p. m. on November 2 from Charlton Street to Battle Monument.

● Considered briefly the plight of adjacent Rose Cottage, the historical but fast-dilapidating structure that will cost $25,000 to $30,000 for renovations, if certain conservationists have their way, but will be razed, if trustees of the cottage have their way.

● Discussed a replacement for former housing commissioner Wesley J. Marshall, who has moved to Wilmington, and decided to name the new man at a special session later in the week.

CANOEING SAVED

New Club Chartered. The University Canoe Club, formed for the purpose of building and operating a canoe boat-house to replace the one facing destruction soon, has been chartered. The club was originated by Gordon G. Sikes, 36 Olden Lane; Aurin M. Chase, 337 Harrison Street, and Alan M. Carrick, 260 Prospect Avenue, with Mr. Carrick acting as attorney.

The three initiators have discussed the matter of a new canoe house with University authorities and have been informed that the University's consulting architect has approved a location on the University side of the lake between the two bridges that has been the sponsors' preferred site all along. One of the trustees of the new organization, Eugene McNulty, an architect with Kenneth Kassler Associates, is donating his services in drawing plans for a new canoe-house.

The new club has a close tie with the undergraduate Outing Club. Membership is expected to be available to all who are interested. It will be necessary to ask for donations in order to build the new canoe-house, and at present it is estimated that about $25,000 will be required. The club is not yet prepared to ask for pledges.

The trustees of the club, besides Mr. Sikes, Mr. McNulty and Mr. Chase: Lyman Spitzer, Jr., William S. Dix, Richard W. Colman, Jr., H. Russell Butler, Jr., Herbert S. Bailey, Jr., Roland T. Film Center Moves Into Town.

The Princeton Film Center this week announced the appointment of Alfred F. Califano as executive vice-president in charge of east coast distribution and production. Mr. Califarno has been a member of the Film Center staff for a number of years.

At the same time, the Center reported that it will switch its operations in Princeton from its Carter Road offices to more central headquarters at 252 Nassau Street. Extensive second-floor renovations are being made, with occupancy in early November scheduled.

The Princeton office will continue to handle all television film distribution and will also supervise certain types of sponsored-film and television film production. The Center has been active in these fields since 1941.

Gordon Knox, the president, will now direct the organization's major production activity in Hollywood. "More efficient and economical TV programming is possible with Hollywood facilities," this week's statement points out in announcing the move.

United Fund Names Committee. Completion of the Special Gifts volunteer solicitors' group of the United Community Fund, which this year must add a whopping $24,000 to its objective in order to help the Fund achieve a total goal of $160,000, was announced this week by John P. Poe, campaign chairman. Arthur N. Hazeltine, head of the Special Gifts group, will be assisted by John T. McLoughlin, Seymour Montgomery and Harland W. Hoisington, Jr.

In elaborating on the part of his committee, slated to perform the early and all-important work of the forthcoming drive, Mr. Hazeltine said the largest group of solicitors ever enlisted to spearhead Special Gifts will be used this year. Some 60 community leaders will contact about 340 prospective subscribers, who last year helped the Fund top its goal by providing almost 70% of the entire amount.

This week, the neighborhood home solicitation coordinators also launched their plans at a meeting at the home of their committee co-chairman, Mrs. Howard J. White. Mrs. White and Thomas F. Huntington, co-chairmen with her, discussed the campaign with 12 neighborhood coordinators, gave them master lists of contacts and reported progress in their effort to line up no less than 300 captains and solicitors.

MUNICIPAL COURT

Spared Jail — For Army. Departing from his usual policy of sending convicted drunk drivers to the county workhouse for a minimum of 30 days, Borough Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro this week imposed a pair of heavy fines instead. Since both Municipal Court defendants are military men about to be shipped overseas, the magistrate reasoned he would be serving justice best by not "snafuing" their service orders. The two uniformed visitors, 21-year-old Jerry L. VanCleave of St. Joseph, Mo., an airman temporarily stationed at McGuire AFB, and 23-year-old Howard B. Price of Silver Springs, Md., a private temporarily stationed at Ft. Dix, paid mandatory fines of $225 each.

Otherwise, Municipal Court was fairly routine this week. Nine out-of-town motorists paid fines for assorted traffic offenses, as did the following Princeton area violators: Mrs. Michele T. Rudel, 521 State Road; Miss Ethel Welch, New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, and D. S. Terhune, 19 N. Greenwood Ave., Hopewell, $15 each for speeding; Robert Simpson, The Great Road, $14 for passing through a red light, and Carl G. Briscoe, Somerville Road, $12 for failure to stop for a "stop" sign. A careless driving complaint against Douglas V. Sutphen, Provinceline Road, was dismissed when testimony revealed that the defendant struck a parked car in lieu of striking down a dog.

TOWNSHIP COURT

Bus Stop. "I stopped for a school bus," Amos Woodside of Trenton testified.

"I stopped for a school bus, too," Frank Brewer of Riverside Park testified.

"I tried to stop for a school bus," Placido Mondello of Belle Mead added.

Such was the verbal chain reaction in Township Court this week as Magistrate Louis R. Gerber heard a careless driving case involving the three motorists, who banged each other in chain-reaction fashion behind a school bus on Mercer Street. Verdict: Not guilty for the two drivers who stopped for the bus and a $15 fine for Mr. Mondello, found guilty of the careless charge.

In other action on the Township's light court calendar, Magistrate Gerber ordered W. S. Gail, 168 Laurel Avenue, to pay a $25 assessment for speeding, also collected a total of $40 from two out-or-town offenders.

Active Weekend for GOP. The accelerated pace of the final lap of the 1958 election campaign is reflected in Princeton this week as Republicans have announced three events to be held in four days. The events include an ad-

DIPLOMATIC APPLECART UPSET: And so's a lot of protocol in "The Sleeping Prince," the Terence Rattigan comedy which gets its American premiere at McCarter Theatre this weekend. Caricatures of the principals, Michael Redgrave and Barbara Bel Geddes, indicate the general tenor of the proceedings.

News of the Theatres

McCARTER THEATRE

An Interesting Choice. In publicizing this weekend's American premiere of "The Sleeping Prince" at McCarter Theatre, Managing Directors Richard Pleasant and Isadora Bennett have come up with an interesting (and money-saving) bit of propaganda that makes sense and ought to help fill all seats. They've labeled it "How to See 'The Sleeping Prince' "—to wit:

(1) Wait a year —until the film (now being made) is released.

(2) Wait until January '57 — the N.Y. engagement at the Coronet is virtually sold out until then—at a $6.90 top!

(3) Catch the show in Princeton, where the best seats are $3.85 evenings and $2.75 at the Saturday thrift matinee.

Actually, this ingenious selling approach probably isn't necessary, for the Terence Rattigan comedy already has made its mark in England and will open here with Michael Redgrave (who is also directing) and Barbara Bel Geddes at the head of a distinguished cast. Mr. Redgrave, one of Britain's ablest actors, last year gave a brilliant performance in "Tiger at the Gate," while Miss Bel Geddes won critical cheers for her tortured young wife in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

(At mid-week, as Town Topics went to press, there were still a few seats available for the evening shows, at 8 Thursday and 8:30 Friday and Saturday, and an ample number for the 2:30 Saturday matinee.)

The story of "The Sleeping Prince" concerns the two-day romance of the Prince Regent of Carpathia, another mythical Balkan country, and Mary Morgan, American chorus girl. Mary has been summoned to the legation after catching the Prince's eye during a London musical comedy. Awed and fascinated by exposure to regal goings on, Mary's suspicions are lulled when the Prince grows lyrical, but her plight becomes risky when, after too much champagne, she passes out and spends the night in the royal shelter.

Needless to relate, something of a scandal and much damaged protocol emerge from this situation. And how Mary (Miss Bel Geddes) and the Prince (Mr. Redgrave) solve their dilemma, with an assist from Her Royal Highness (Cathleen Nesbitt of "My Fair Lady" fame), is told in gay, crisp terms.

Ill-Poured Cup of Tea. Last weekend, before two sellout audiences during its four-performance McCarter appearance, "Separate Tables" proved why it was a large success in London and ran there for two years. The acting, by a basically imported cast, was superb. The direction, by Peter Glenville, was sensitive and near-flawless. The written lines, by Mr. Rattigan (who must be establishing a Princeton record with his two consecutive presentations), were moving and commendably representative of England's leading contemporary playwright.

But, despite its many stimulating ingredients, "Tables" did not pour as if it was America's cup of tea. It may have been consumed with great vigor at home, and it will be sampled by a lot of New York theatre patrons after it opens at the Music Box on October 25 (as indicated by a good advance sale); yet it is not destined for a lengthy Broadway run. American theatergoers en masse will not swallow this typically British tedium.

Unfortunately for Mr. Rattigan and his illustrious English company, the American public has absorbed an overdose of sentimentalism, thanks—or, perhaps more fittingly, no thanks—to Hollywood, TV and even the legitimate theatre. The pendulum has swung toward realism and, with it, toward story endings that ring true. (And, for this reason, it is curious to wonder that Hecht-Lancaster bid $375,000 for film rights to "Tables.")

Mr. Rattigan has dealt studiously and meaningfully with the subject of loneliness in "Tables." However, in remaining steadfastly British, he has permitted his subject to develop so long and painstakingly that it grows overmorbid. Then, in a last-ditch effort to substitute happiness for loneliness, he has stopped telling the truth and turned suddenly to the sentimental ending device.

Reconciliation and Revolution. "Table by the Window" and "Table Number Seven" are the author's two separate stories, both set in the same stylish resort inn with all characters remaining the same except the two principals.

In the first act, a journalist-turned-drunk (Eric Portman) is reconciled with his comely but cold wife (Margaret Leighton). During their years apart, the newspaperman has spent time in

Music in Princeton

McCARTER THEATRE

Berlin Philharmonic Here. The concert by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra Monday evening in McCarter Theatre was a resounding confirmation of two musical assumptions. First, that symphonic music has a more direct appeal to the public at large than any other kind of music, and second that the price demanded by perfection is very often more than it's worth.

The tumultuous ovation accorded Herbert von Karajan and his musicians by the Princeton audience was a tribute both to the achievements of the orchestra and the power of massed sound. It is indeed astounding to think that this remarkable performing body just eight years ago was compelled to request informal dress of a London audience because the orchestra itself possessed but one dresshirt. The Berlin Philharmonic today is again in the front ranks of the world's great orchestras, a distinction which even a Cassandra could not have prophesied back in the early post-war years.

The kind of orchestra which has developed since that time, and which we can assume has reached a sort of musical plateau under the watchful eyes of Mr. von Karjan, is a very rewarding object of study. The phenomenon of some 80 or 90 musicians whose musical instincts at any given moment are in complete accord with those of the conductor is doubtless a desirable one, though seldom achieved. The Berlin Philharmonic has achieved it, but not without sacrifice.

Remarkable as it may be to hear—a string section so well-balanced that each player seems constantly to be aware of the exact sound being produced by his neighbors and to modulate his own in accordance with it; or a wind section capable of shaping individual lines into perfect proportion; or an orchestral ensemble which can plan an extended crescendo with such control that one feels literally drawn from one's seat with the gradual increase in volume; outstanding as these and similar virtues may be, the do not compensate for lack of certain qualities which other orchestras offer in abundance. How welcome would have been the warm, rich string tone of Boston or Philadelphia in the Symphonie Liturgique of Honegger, or the rough humor of Weingartner and the Vienna Philharmonic in the Presto of Beethoven's Seventh.

The Symphony No. 3 by Honegger seems to be liturgical only in the titles of its three movements, all from the Requiem Mass: Dies irae, De profundis clamavi, Dona nobis paccem. The music strongly suggests an extra-musical program, which the composer has hinted at but failed to supply. The dotted rhythm in the first movement is a sort of "telegraphic" motive occurring in various sections of the orchestra throughout the entire work.

The piano is extensively employed as a strictly percussive instrument, although it also serves an antiphonal function in the second movement. A triple forte climax is reached in the Dona nobis on a chord which is as light in sound and construction as the clenched fist which von Karajan raised above his head.

Theodore Berger, an Austrian composer, was on hand to acknowledge the applause for his Rondo Giocoso. A spirited piece, the Rondo is a moto perpetuo which anachronously employs devices suggestive of Medieval and Renaissance techniques—such things as hemiola, frequent changes between triple and duple time, and hocket, a rapid alteration of material between two parts.

The late 18th century composer Cherubini was represented on the program by the overture to his opera Anacreon. It might be mentioned that an unusual programmatic unity resulted, quite accidently, from the reflection in pieces of the second half of the program of several musical ideas of the first. The prolonged crescendo in the Cherubini work found its more dramatic counterpart in the Honegger, and the "telegraphic" rhythm of the Honegger was metamorphosed into the more lighthearted message of the end of the introduction of the first movement of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

MUSICAL AMATEURS

First Meeting Set. Works by Mozart, Bach and Haydn are among the works which will be sung this year by the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs. The Society begins its 21st consecutive year with a meeting at Miss Fine's School on Sunday afternoon at 5:15 to which all those interested are welcome.

The purpose of the Society is to gather together all musically-minded Princeton people who want to sing great choral works of the musical literature with orchestra. The organization exists merely for the enjoyment derived from singing the music and plans no public performance.

The group started with 20 people at the home of Mrs. MacKenty Bryan and has grown to a membership of 230, of whom about 150 attend the meetings once a month, October through May. Professor J. Merrill Knapp of the Princeton Music Department and Assistant Dean of the College, directs the group.

Works to be sung this year will be: Mass in C minor by Mozart on October 14; Requiem Mass by Cherubini on November 11; Messiah by Handel on December 16; Samson by Handel January 20; St. John Passion by Bach February 10; Theresa Mass by Haydn March 10; Beatitudes by Franck April 28; and B minor Mass by Bach May 19.

A small membership fee is charged. The organization includes a cross-section of the Princeton population and vicinity. At the meeting Sunday there will be an intermission for supper, after which the singing is resumed and continues until 9 o'clock. Those interested are requested to give their name to Mrs. MacKenty Bryan, 2A N.M. Reunion Hall, University Campus by calling Princeton 1-0453, between 2 and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

It's New to Us

Polyethelene Screwdriver . . . ? Well, not quite, but if you asked for one they'd probaby order it for you. Hardware Corporation, Shopping Center, is one of those stores where inventory must be a nightmare because of the incredible diversity of the stock.

You can buy anything—anything—in this store. We found fibreglas insulating material by the yard, doors that shut the shower away from the bathroom, a Pyrex casserole and its rack, mouse traps and a ten-foot shelf with nothing but Permacel steel wool in several grades.

Polyethelene makes its appearance in an aristocratic garbage can ($12.95) that has a lock-lid cover an da 20-gallon capacity. It won't rust, natch, and it's noiseless when the garbage man comes at 6 a.m. It is also sanitary and very pretty, as that sort of thing goes.

The shower door we mentioned above has an aluminum frame and a tough, resilient plastic cover that looks like frosted glass with the inevitable bathroom fish-and-sea-weed etched thereon. It keeps drafts out and the water in, and will fit any five-foot tub. No nails necessary, just $39.95.

When you paint a window frame (Hardware Corporation has advice, along with everything else) you should leave some paint between glass and frame to act as a sealer. A new scraper is so allgned that it leaves this sealer and scrapes paint evenly off the rest of the window. It scoots along on wheels as you push it. Costs 98c.

The Paragon candle has a thing on the bottom that fits it into any candlestick without the nuisance of wrapping a lot of paper around the end. It will also stand by itself without any candlestick. In taper or regular sizes, it comes in all sorts of limpid colors like violet, chocolate, sprout green, burgundy and the like—24 in all. Price is two for a quarter.

In addition to the Hoover, G.E. and Westinghouse vacuum cleaner bags, window shades, popularly priced handyman tools, bike equipment and baking sets, Hardware Corporation has a paint alcove almost as big as a store itself. Kyanize and du Pont are represented, and you can paint anything from a porch floor to a concrete block to a nursery with the paints in this spectrum.

Fleeced. We use the word in its sartorial sense, referring to a lip-smacking coat of irridescent gabardine lined with poppy red orlon fleece. It appears—if this shy little word will do—at Princeton Clothing, 17 Witherspoon!

The gabardine is called Westphalia cloth and it doesn't glow in the dark or anything like that. It's just faintly shimmering, rather like a subdued taffeta, but with a definite gabardine texture and weight. Inside is that red fleece, and holding it all together is a series of toggles.

Red again—this time a whole Loden coat of it, made in this country from imported wools. Gentlemen whose tastes are quieter may like a long surcoat, long enough to cover a suit jacket. It's grey (brown) with an insulated lining that gives feather-weight and downy warmth.

Choose a sports shirt from the collection that allies the Netherlands and the Highlands: Dutch flannel in clan tartans. Dutch flannel is a very fine weave, completely washable, with bright strong colors.

You'll find Black Watch, Gordon, and two we couldn't identify —both predominantly red. Price is $5.39.

A sweater to wear under one of Princeton Clothing's tweed jackets might be lamb's wool (80%) and orlon (20%), knit with a crew or V neck. There's charcoal green—one of the best colors in this collection — brown, grey, medium grey, tan, or powder blue. A little packet of Woolite for washing, goes along for a free ride.

Button up a raincoat in a pale oyster shade, lined with good warm red plaid. A rain hat or cap matches. Coat is $18.50, head gear is $2.95. And speaking of caps—there's an olive green

Autumn Burnish

Brass and copper as glowing as an autumn hillside — the work table of this little shop outside Pennington gleams with antique metal pieces brought to life by the craftsmen-owner of the shop.

It's the "Trent Handy Shop," specializing in the restoration and repair of metal antiques. We saw a fusty old frey lamp, newly wired and brought to high brassy gleam after its nickel plating had been removed; a Chinese vase, copper-lined and mended to be watertight; innumerable antiques made into lamps; a copper washtub, polished for use on a hearth; a silver tea service, just replated.

You reach Trent Handy (three years in Trenton before the move last month) by driving through Lawrenceville to the intersection of the Lawrenceville-Trenton Road and Route 546. Right on 546 to the Pennington Circle, full turn around the circle, and there's the shop, in the outbuilding of a white farmhouse next to a Mobilgas station.

Most of Trent's customers are women who bring children, so Mr. Valentine, the owner, plans a playground on his front lawn. See-saw, while you wait for that lamp to be repaired.

GRINS REFLECT PEACE, NOT WAR: Mel Ferrer (Princeton '39) and his real-life wife, Audrey Hepburn, look as happy in this scene from "War and Peace" as they reportedly are off the screen. The much-discussed film is the current offering at the Playhouse.

jail for beating his spouse and has lost his promising political career, but, at the end, of course, all is forgiven by Mr. Rattigan.

In the second act, a bogus and lascivious British "major" (Mr. Portman) is shunned by the wonderfully concocted inn-mates, except for a shy, awkward spinster (Miss Leighton), who revolts against her very proper mother's best wishes and befriends the wandering soldier with wandering emotions. At the end, she is joined in the hand-holding by everyone save mother.

Possibly the most memorable feature of "Tables" is the incredible transformation of Miss Leighton from the glamorous in one act to the gawky in another. Her second appearance prompted a genuine double-take by an amazed audience, so complete and believable was her change. Mr. Portman, respected for his stage talent for 30 years, was no less convincing in his dual performances, and the entire supporting cast aided splendidly in an evenly acted production.

Michael Weight's striking sets, built on a pair of revolving platforms to speed the action between scenes (if not during them), were appealing and in perfect taste. In fact, the whole show was well-blended, but simply not a cup of tea for the U.S. table.

THE PLAYHOUSE

War and Peace (now playing an extended engagement) devotes three hours and 28 minutes to the monumental task of bridging the wide gap between the pages of Leo Tolstoy's great novel and the modern motion picture screen, with notable results. The cinema condensation leaves much to be desired, as might be expected in the over-simplification of such a literary classic; yet, it does boast many brilliant scenes, including some of the finest battle sequences ever filmed. Henry Fonda and Audrey Hepburn handle their difficult portrayals with aplomb, receiving a creditable assist from Mel Ferrer (Princeton '39.)

THE GARDEN

Secrets of the Reef and Africa Adventure (Oct. 11-13) present moviegoers with a package that contains a pair of fine, 70-minute documentary films. The first details vividly and colorfully the perpetual struggle for existence that takes place underwater, while the other covers pictorially much of the dark continent material discussed by Robert C. Ruark in his recent best-selling book, "Something of Value." Reviewers recommend both pictures for the entire family.

The King and I (Oct. 15-17), which visited The Playhouse during the summer, returns to Princeton by "popular request," and the phrase, in this instance, is not a false come-on trumped up by the management. For the cinema production of Rodgers & Hammerstein's tremendously successful musical play is a true screen triumph, a beautiful, opulent, heart-stirring film. All the necessary elements for a winning combination are present. Wonderful songs by R & H. Yul Brynner, incomparable as the King of Siam, in his original stage role. Deborah Kerr proving she can sing as well as act. Color by DeLuxe, with the emphasis on photogenic Siamese costumes and palatial premises (vintage 1862). CinemaScope 55 capturing the imagination in addition to the sweep of a lavish musical. It's a "must!"

WORKSHOP PLAYERS

First Meeting Tuesday. All Princetonians interested in working on such facets of drama as experimental one-act plays, choral readings and play readings—in short, aspects of the theatre not adaptable to a large group—will be welcomed by the Workshop Players at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the social room of the First Presbyterian Church. A reading will follow the evening's business meeting, and light refreshments will be served.

The Workshop Players, a group within the Princeton Community Players, will be looking for "pet projects" from new members at its first session of the year. Veteran members will be ready to help the newcomers set their plans in motion. (For further information about the Workshop Players, interested residents are asked to phone Mrs. Byron Keene at PR 1-0744).

corduroy that we'd like to see on a redhead.

Men who like argyles but don't like wool may now have some cotton ones, woven in a two-ply Heatherspun yarn that's soft as wool itself. There are bright colors, with overplaid in black.

To Boot. Moving out of the desert and into the artic tundra, Clark now presents a real boot of a boot. It's made of russet brown leather lined throughout with real shearling wool. There's a microcellular sole that makes it light. Thomas Brophy has it at 78 Nassau for men and women, price $17.95 for both.

Clark also has a Desert Kahn, in case you were wondering. It's a two-tie shoe with square "wings" that move out over the vamp. (These are part of a sewn-down design — they don't flap.) The finish is a light antique brown, and the shoe has the same light weight of the lined boot.

Here's a twist—a new loafer, no less. This one achieves distinction because it's fully lined with leather. The lining is calf and the loafer itself is Puritan veal, which means it's a good husky shoe. The color is a rich chocolate with the barest touch of red, and the price is the barest touch of $16.95.

dress Friday evening by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, a community outing at Squatters Grove Saturday afternoon and a public meeting Monday at Kingston at which Sen. H. Alexander Smith will speak.

Secretary Weeks, who will give his address at 8:30 p. m. in Alexander Hall on the University campus, will be introduced by William H. Wells of Bordentown, Republican candidate for Congress from this district. Mr. Wells will in turn be introduced by Senator Smith. Other local and county candidates will also be present, according to Lowell Thomas Jr., program chairman.

A dinner will be given at the home of Mr. Thomas in honor of Secretary and Mrs. Weeks Friday evening. Included among the guests will be Senator and Mrs. Smith, Mayor and Mrs. P. MacKay Sturges, Mayor and Mrs. Ralph Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Wells, County G.O.P. Chairman Joseph pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ely, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mangold and Mr. and Mrs. David Holmes

The Saturday afternoon outing at Squatters Grove will feature a talk by Mrs. Carmel Carrington Marr, a United Nations legal advisor and an active member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The affair, sponsored by the combined Republican clubs of Princeton, will be held from 1 to 6 p. m. Games, contests, refreshments and entertainments will be provided for those paying the $1 admmission fee, with children admitted free.

Squatters Grove may be reached by going nut Mercer Street to Quaker Road and turning left on Quaker Road for three-quarters of a mile. Persons wishing transportation may call the Republican headquarters on Spring Street, Princeton 1-0520. In case of rain the affair will be held at the same hours in the Chestnut Street Firehouse. Elmer Greey is chairman of the outing.

Monday's public meeting at the Kingston Firehouse will begin at 8 p.m. Arthur E. Tempel Republican Committeeman, heads the committee in charge. A vocal quartet and other music will be included.

Dollars for Democrats

A house-to-house canvass to be held on Tuesday has been declared National Dollars for Democrats Day, as a coordinated effort of the Democratic organization and the Princeton Volunteers for Stevenson-Kefauver. The canvass will be set up by voting districts, and solicitors will be volunteers from the two organizations.

The solicitations will be in the form of small books of receipts, valued at either $1.00 or $5. The books are labelled "TV Fund for Victory — Citizens for Stevenson-Kefauver."

The volunteers will work all day on Tuesday until 9 P. M. Collection will then be brought to the Democratic Headquarters at 236 Nassau Street, where a count will be taken and refreshments served.

Township Auditor Retires. Mrs. Marguerite Von Strein Sterzl of Monmouth Junction, long-time auditor for Princeton Township, asked the Township committee for permission to retire at Monday's meeting. C. Bergen Groendyke of Trenton was appointed to serve out Mrs. Sterzl's term.

Other business dealt with included a request by Bradford Mills to have the northernmost tip of Province Line Road paved. Mayor Ralph S. Mason, who presided over the meeting, said that this particular piece is located on the line between Hopewell township. Joseph Nini, township clerk, was delegated to check with Hopewell township on the matter.

Sale Committee Appointed. The committee in charge of directing the work of some 200 volunteer workers in the Hospital Aid Rummage Sale has been appointed. The sale will be held in the Chamber Street Firehouse during the week of October 22 through the 25. The committee is headed by Mrs. Robert Serrell,

A LONG-AWAITED MOMENT IN PRINCETON HISTORY: After 62 years in its now-crowded firehouse on Witherspoon Street, the Hook & Ladder company of Princeton realized this week that the time has almost come to move to new, spacious quarters. Ground-breaking ceremonies for the Borough's $280,000 firehouse-garage on Harrison Street, just north of Nassau Street, confirmed the fact. Work will be finished by mid-June. Using a new shovel, to be preserved as a Hook & Ladder trophy, Mayor P. Mackay Sturges handled the ground-breaking honors. Officiating with him were (left to right) Wilbur F. Kerr, Hook & Ladder president; James L. Briner, fire company trustee; and George Cahill, Princeton fire chief. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

The remaining four sessions will include hygiene, nutrition, clothing for mother and baby, after-care of the baby and an educational film.

The course is sponsored by a committee consisting of Mrs. Kennedy Kedin and Mrs. David Pines, a co-chairmen of the Educational Committee of the Princeton Committee for Planned Parenthood; Mrs. W. G. Rainey of the Visiting Nurse Association; and Mrs. T. Lowrie McLarty of the Princeton YWCA. Sessions will start at 8 o'clock, preceded by a half-hour social period at which after dinner coffee will be served.

Participating as advisers for the course are Doctors J. R. Burbidge, Nathaniel L. Greenfield, S. Robert Lewis, J. Leonard Moore, Jeannette Munro, W. E. Pollard, David J. Rose, A. D. IT'S SWOONTIME, MAN, AND IT'S THE CRAZIEST: With attention focused on what's coming out of the record machine's loudspeaker, four Princeton High coeds make no bones about their afternoon enjoyment of effervescent Elvis Presley's latest lament, "Love Me Tender." The real gone gals are (left to right) Edie Jackson, Penny Pendyke, Patty Patko and Midge Van Note. Less enthusiastic about the whole thing is waitress Mary Meeker. For their feelings in words, read below. (Ed Hein Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you "dig" Elvis Presley?

Location: The Esquire Luncheonette, 258 Nassau Street.

Edie Jackson, 638 Lake Drive, 14-year-old Princeton High freshman: Yeah, I think he's crazy gone! I love him! I like his sideburns and I like his movements. I don't think he can sing so good, but I like the way he puts it over. I belong to his original fan club. In fact, I'm a charter member.

Marie Fowler, 39 Leigh Avenue, 15-year-old PHS sophomore: Do I! Just look at these pictures of Elvis that I take to school with me. I carry them with me always. He's sharp. No kidding, he's really real great, and he's cute. Most people say he can't sing, but he really can. At least, I think so. I'm happy he recorded "Love Me Tender." His others have had wonderful rhythm, but they weren't just right for dancing. We needed his latest—he had to make it.

Paul Vangreen, Princeton Inn, waiter: No, I don't. His singing, yes, but otherwise he's strictly a creep. He's a big show-off—the way he moves around and everything. He must have ants in his pants!

Patty Patko, R.D. 1 (Rocky Hill - Griggstown), 17-year-old PHS senior: He's just a living doll! He's so cute and sexy. He's the rock 'n roll king, and he has a wonderful voice. "Don't Be Cruel" is my favorite, but "Love Me Tender" is cool, too. Do you know our latest saying? Oh, Elvis, press me!

Mary Meeker, 4 Franklin Terrace, waitress at the Esquire: He's a good singer, but I've heard too much! Take him away! Take his records out of the jukebox!

Bob Halahan, Portage, Pa., 18-year-old school senior: I think he's a pretty good singer—he can sing about four different types of songs well—and I enjoy his slow as well as fast numbers. He has talent. People don't like him because he shakes, and I don't like that myself, to tell you the truth. But he's no flash in the pan—Elvis is here to stay.

Penny Pendyke, 15 Parkway, Plainsboro, 17-year-old PHS senior: I like slower music better, but Elvis is all right for a pep rally or when you're razz-a-matazzing. For a kid just leaving a trucking job, he's doing okay. I admire him for having enough intestinal fortitude to leave it. By the way, please mention that Patty and I work for ASCOP so the company will believe that Question of the Week was the cause of our being late to work.

Midge Van Note, 58 Longmead, 14-year-old PHS freshman: He's the absolute end. He sends me, really. I belong to three Presley fan clubs. I love his voice and I love "Love Me Tender." But, believe me, he should stick to singing and not try to replace James Dean in the movies. James Dean was James Dean—and he can't be replaced!

Jack Esche, Penns Neck, letter carrier: I know Elvis from playing guitar on the same show with him in '53, before he got to shaking. As a man, he's a good guy. As for singing, he's okay for rock 'n roll—in fact, he's tops—but he's not a western singer. In short, some of his songs are good, some are bad. I'll tell you one thing for sure—his electric guitar player is better than Elvis.

Ray DuRon, Gallitzin, Pa., 19-year-old visitor: The only thing good about him is that he's usually on the radio and you can turn it off!

More Than a Hound Dog

In one of his incredibly popular recordings, sometime rock 'n rollster Elvis Presley wails, "Don't Be Cruel." This week, with the confirmed report that Elvis' western ballad, "Love Me Tender," received 1,000,000 music shop orders before its recent release, there is ample reason to believe that no one is going to be.

Taking notice of the guitar-banging artist's phenomenal rise to sudden (and perhaps permanent) fame and willing to admit readily that he is a subject of more than considerable current interest, Town Topics uses him as the basis for Question of the Week. A variety of appropriately lively answers to a pertinent Presley query can be found elsewhere on this page.

Why I Plan to Vote

DEMOCRATIC

By Stanley W. Ackley

The fact that I will vote Democratic will come as no surprise to those who are familiar with my political convictions. However, the events of the past four years enabled me to cast my Democratic ballot with more conviction than ever.

First, I would like to extend my thanks to the McKays, Weekses, Humphries, and Wilson for dispelling the myth that the Republican Party which came to power in 1952 was a new party, that the Dinosaurs had been put out to pasture, and that the leadership of Dwight Eisenhower would transform the traditional vehicle of special privilege into a responsible, progressive servant of all the people. This was one of the cruelest hoaxes ever perpetrated upon the American electorate. Fortunately, the Republican Party itself has dug the grave for this legend and it remains merely for the people to cover up the corpse. Any remaining hope that the President could lead his party into the present, let alone into the future, vanishes with the most cursory examination of the voting records of members of the President's party.

Hardly had the tumult of the inauguration passed when the Republicans, this time with the blessings of the President, transferred to three states the offshore oil reserves belonging to the entire nation. The Judases of the Democratic Party were well paid and the Republican Party wrote another chapter in its long, lurid, history in connection with oil.

With freer trade the crying need of the world, the President's own party has attempted to balk every effort of the Democratic party to free the nation's commerce from the shackles of outworn protectionism. The President contributed to his own advocacy of freer trade by appointing friends of protection to the Tariff Commission.

In taxation, labor legislation, national defense, and public welfare the interests of the people have been consistently sacrificed to the interests of the wealthy. Regulatory bodies have been packed with the friends and representatives of the industries they were to regulate. The maintenance of regressive excise taxes, which bear most heavily on the poor, and tax handouts in the form of capital-gains loopholes and fast write-offs to the rich have been the core of the "new" Republicans' tax policy.

Where New Deal social reforms were too widely accepted to be attacked directly, they were sabotaged by paralyzing budget cuts. Public housing was committed to the hands of one of its greatest foes. The splendid resource conservation and development programs which flourished under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have suffered the same fate.

Hell's Canyon and Al Serena are fitting examples of the administrations concern for the public welfare. T V A probably the most unique and successful experiment in unified economic development in the world, has had to fight for its very life at home at the same time that it is being imitated all over the world. The success of T V A has been too embarrassing to the private power interests who now write-to the last comma—the power policy of the Eisenhower administration.

Republicans who are embarrassed by the legislative record of their party are appealing plaintively that "Ike needs more time" to effect the transformation of the Republican Party. To this I answer that the image of Dwight Eisenhower as a non-partisan President, above sordid realities of practical politics, is an even greater myth than that of the "new" Republicanism. The President has called for the election, not of "deserving" Republicans, but of all Republicans; his blessings fall equally upon Javits and Dirksen. The President is a Republican; and the electorate has a right to judge him upon the performance of the party he leads, not as a kindly, well meaning individual who somehow should not be blamed for the failures of his underlings.

I see no reason why the people should gamble for another four years on a party which still, in the eyes of its own friends, needs to be "transformed." The Democratic Party does not have to be converted to democracy; it gave birth to democratic ideals and has never lost them.

REPUBLICAN

By Carolyn Baumgartner

I plan to vote Republican this year because I have been so impressed by President Eisenhower's ability, patriotism, and integrity; and because I think that Ike's faith in the ability of the American people to manage their affairs, without interference from the government, mirrors the guiding spirit of the entire Republican party.

Down the years, America's greatest leaders have reposed great confidence in the native sagacity and ability of the American people. The founding fathers of our nation, and their worthy successors, have been guided by the principle that the government should perform only those essential activities which private citizens cannot accomplish as private groups.

I think that the soundness of this basic principle is illustrated by the unprecedented prosperity we Americans have created for ourselves, during these past four years that Ike's Republican administration has withdrawn the government from unwarranted interference in the affairs of private citizens.

In so doing, the Republicans kept the major promise they made during the 1952 campaign. They have demonstrated in this and many other ways that they are a party of honesty who will keep the promises they make, and I am confident that another Republican administration will carry on the noble policies and the fine work of the present administration.

I, too, think that "the best governed people are the least governed". I am eligible to vote for the first time, this year, and I hope I shall be fortunate enough to live out the life that lies before me under an honest, selfless, truly democratic government such as we have had under President Eisenhower.

I shall be thousands of miles away from Princeton on Election Day, but I have made the necessary arrangements for an absentee ballot, and the inconvience involved seems trivial, by comparison with the satisfaction I shall derive, and the justice I shall do to my own political principles, by casting my first vote for Ike and the fellow Republicans he needs in office to help him carry out his programs.

Taxes: Up-to-Date

The plan to bring assessments up to date means that the two Princeton communities are up-to-date. So far in New Jersey, only 47 towns have taken on the job of bringing their assessments into line.

Eight of these towns, including Princeton, are at the moment under the microscope of the J. M. Cleminshaw Co. In the past, the firm has surveyed about 20 New Jersey towns including communities such as Cranford, Madison, Milburn and Montclair that have certain similarities to Princeton.

Re-assessment has never been done in Princeton before. The tax situation "jest growed," resulting in the inequalities that the Cleminshaw hawkshaws now are busily equalizing. Many communities that see themselves growing as fast as Princeton, undertake reassessments regularly — every five years, as a rule — and some tax experts believe that such a program may be in Princeton's future.

MAN WITH A STICK

Report on Reassessment. According to the old saying, there are two certainties in the world; death and taxes. Since June, Princeton residents have added a third: the visit of the assessor who knocks on every door under the Borough and Township program of complete property reassessment.

What's he looking for when he peers into your attic, or inchworms his ten-foot measuring stick along your bedroom walls? And what will his verdict mean on your tax bill?

Reassessment for both Borough and Township is being done by the J. M. Cleminshaw Company of Cleveland, Ohio. The project director is Gordon Blackadar, and he has the answer to these anxious questions.

Mr. Blackadar and his crew of about 10 men are appraising your house for its actual market value. As background for their appraisal, they have all the figures on lumber and material costs in the Princeton area. They know the local union labor rates and the building cost schedules for all different types of construction. (Even if you built your house yourself or used non-union labor, the local union wage is still the scale that is used.)

With this background, the man with the ten-foot pole starts out by measuring the square footage of each separate part of your house. How many ground floor square feet? How many upstairs? What's the area of your garage and that now brick terrace?

Detailed Examination Made. He look your house over: maybe you have just a crawl space for a basement, but two finished rooms and a bath where an attic used to be. You have a fireplace, and a double floor of oak that's worth more than a single flooring of pine.

A room air-conditioner doesn't count — it's "furniture" — but a built-in air-conditioning system goes down on your card. The built-in wall oven and built-in dishwasher will be considered with the kitchen as a whole, but usually appliances are not part of an appraisal.

The inspector looks over your wiring, your plumbing and tiling. He notes the kind of interior finish your house has, its foundation and exterior walls, the kind of roofing.

He will also eye your swimming pool, but it may surprise you to learn that he gives it a very conservative evaluation because it's used for only part of the year. He will measure your front footage and use a depth table to calculate your area if you have a irregular Township lot.

The young man who brings his measuring rod to your door is a permanent, full-time employee on the first rung of the Cleminshaw ladder. Before the final figure for your house is reached, an expert of many years' experience will re-examine your property, probably from the outside only, to make sure it's properly classified.

In making up your appraisal, the expert considers your house as a whole. He allows, of course, for age, for poor design, for poor location. You may have a large porch and terrace, but only one bath and no basement; the finest kind of roofing but a bad location on a busy corner. Your house may be too small for resale, or so large that it's outlived its usefulness and has little resale value.

True Value Calculated. Having noted the year in which you bought the house and the price you paid, the assessor then compares your property with the analysis he has made of every property sale in Borough (or Township) in the last five years.

When all these various figures and factors have been meticulously considered and fitted into their proper relationships, the expert arrives at a final figure—the 100% true value of your house. (If you own a business property, the procedure is the same, but the assessor also considers the capitalization of net income.)

The assessors hastily add that this is only the appraised value of your home—it doesn't represent your tax. At present, your house is assessed at 32.37% of its pre-Clemmshaw value if you live in the Borough, 23.55% if you live in the Township. Borough Council and Township Committee will use the new 100% true value figure as the base for considering all future tax assessments.

Mr. Blackadar's crew has finished its field work in the Borough's 2250 units and expects to have data finished by November 15. Work on the Township's 3300 units is about 60% along, and the results will probably be released around December 1.

If you own property in the Township, you'll receive a letter telling you the appraised value of your house. Then in December there will be seven days of hearings, and if you think you have a case against the assessor you may present it then, with the right of appeal to County and State.

So far, the Borough hasn't decided whether to send individual letters or let property owners look up their own figures at Borough Hall. In either case, there will be the same provision for meeting with the Clemmshaw staff to ask "Why?"

Watch the Home Fires! It's all right to keep the home fires burning, but make sure they burn where you want and don't let them get scattered. That is the plea Fire Chief George Cahill has made during National Fire Prevention Week.

Chief Cahill reminded residents that they should be particularly careful burning leaves and similar material on windy days. Admonition was also given fire engine chasers "who like to get in the race. Charges will be brought against any person who obstructs the work of the department by following engines too closely," Chief Cahill warned.

"Please Drive Slowly"

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

Because we have no way of knowing who did it, would you be kind enough to print this letter TO THE MAN WHO KILLED OUR DOG:

Where were you going, that Wednesday afternoon, that you had to drive so fast on a narrow, twisting country road? So fast that you couldn't see a large white springer spaniel? What business was so important that you couldn't even leave a note to say you were sorry?

You must feel pretty smug that nobody saw you. Of course you should have reported to the police "destruction of property worth more than $25."

But we didn't think of her in terms of money. We thought of her in terms of a year of joyful bounces when we came home, of hiding under the bed in the hope that she would be allowed to stay there all night, of trying to be good when told not to eat the cats' food. We thought of how much she liked to have her chest scratched, and how much she liked all baby things, especially kittens—she brought us a baby rabbit once, very carefully, unharmed. We were looking forward to the happiness of having her own puppies.

Nothing can give Honey back to us. But please, in case something can really make you feel bad, please drive slowly on the little roads where people live. You might kill a deer, or a child on a bicycle, or someone more important than a loving spaniel who will never have her own puppies now.

Statement on School Bus Bill.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your issue of September 30-October 6 carried a story stating that the League of Women Voters was asking parents to write to their representatives in the State House urging passage of bills an school bus transportation.

As soon as this story of yours came to my attention I informed you that it was utterly false, and you assured me that in the next issue of Town Topics you would correct the mistake. This you have not done. Instead of doing so you have printed another misstatement. In a small paragraph printed under the heading "Miscellany" you have asserted that "The League of Women Voters has withdrawn last week's statement. . . ."

The League of Women Voters has not and could not have "withdrawn" a statement that it never had made. You had erroneously attributed such a statement to the League, you had done so without having tried to verify whatever rumor or gossip may have misled you, and you had been officially informed that your printed assertion was in fact false. The statement that you should have "withdrawn", the only statement that there was to withdraw.

Until now, children from Princeton have been helped at the Trenton office, but various social agencies and the Princeton Schools have wanted the Center to make its services more accessible to Princeton. The Princeton Board of Education has now made this possible by providing space in the Nassau Street School.

Any boy or girl up through high school age who lives in Mercer County is eligible for the services of the Center. Parents who feel that their child is having more difficulty in growing up than is usually expected may apply to the Center to discuss the problem, and if their concern seems warranted, arrangements will be made to study the child. Appointments can be made by calling the Trenton office, OWen 5-3466, on any weekday between 9 and 5. Fees are adjusted to the family's ability to pay.

TOUGHER OPPOSITION

Penn to Test Tigers. Pennsylvania's football team will lineup for the kickoff against Princeton Saturday in a frame of mind it has not known in a full three years. For the first time since October, 1953, the Quakers will step on the field as a winning outfit, and in view of the length of time that the Red and Blue hungered for victory, the confidence the new feeling will instill is immense.

Using nothing more than straight, old-fashioned football (it threw only three passes), Penn topped a surprised Dartmouth outfit, 14 to 7. It was the first victory for the Philadelphia entry since it had beaten Navy three years ago this month, and after a late-season tie with Cornell that year, the Quakers proceeded to drop 19 in a row.

It was largely sophomore strength that beat Dartmouth—two players in their first year on the varsity and two juniors were the starting backfield, while the reserve strength in the line is also largely from the Class of '59, which last year whipped Princeton, 26 to 0. The Quakers will start Dick Ross, a junior, at quarterback; Frank Ripel, another junior, and John Wright at halfback; and Dave Sikarskie, a sophomore as is Wright, at fullback.

Bill Young, Jr., who was born and raised in Princeton before his parents moved to Dover, is injured and will not see action in the backfield, Dick Wood, a Princeton High alumnus whose home is on Mount Lucas Road, is a reserve back on the Quaker squad.

Penn runs almost entirely from the T. Steve Sebo's operatives shifted into the single wing twice against Penn State, but not at all against Dartmouth. They are not particularly big—the line averages only 192 and will give away seven pounds per man to the Tigers.

However, Cappy Cappon, who scouted them for Princeton, reports that "they hit with vim and vigor." Having played Penn State and Dartmouth while sub-par Rutgers and Columbia failed to provide much opposition for Princeton, they are considerably better tested than the Orange and Black.

Dartmouth Truly Green. Penn earned its triumph over Dartmouth in clear-cut fashion, but the Indians' inexperience on defense made the Quakers' sustained ground advances somewhat easier than they should have been. The Red and Blue rolled for 233 yards rushing, making passes generally unessential.

Traffic Troubles

Philadelphia Police Commissioner Thomas J. Gibbons has advised Princetonians planning to drive to the Pennsylvania game Saturday not to try to park near Franklin Field. Thousands of school children will be on their way by bus to a large convention in Convention Hall, near Franklin Field, and heavy traffic jams in the area are anticipated.

Commissioner Gibbons suggests that those going by car plan to park in the center of the city and go to the game by taxi, streetcar or subway. Franklin Field is at 33d and Spruce Streets. The kickoff is set for 1:30, half an hour earlier than October games at Palmer Stadium.

Princeton will go into Saturday's game with one somewhat inexplicable factor possibly set to continue working against it. In the post-war decade, the Tigers have not played particularly good ball against the Quakers, whom they almost invariably meet in the third game of the season. Last year, for example, they barely edged the all-losing Philadelphians, 7 to 0, and the day their 24-game winning streak was snapped in 1953 they were markedly below the form that eventually earned them an 8-1 season.

There have been exceptions, of course—primarily the unforgettable 17-14 upset of 1946 and a solid 13-7 triumph over the last of the good Penn teams at Franklin Field in 1951. Off the Quakers' resurgence against Dartmouth, it is apparent that a good performance by Princeton will be fully requisite to a Princeton triumph.

The Tigers still appear to have a linebacking problem on the right side, what with Columbia's none-too-strong ground game making some fairly substantial gains, and it is apparent that they will yield yardage to a good passing attack. On several occasions, Columbia receivers were uncovered but dropped the well-thrown passes from Claude Benham and his replacement, Carmen Marnell.

The Princeton offense is, however, a good deal more varied than it was a year ago, when it had been built so completely around Royce Flippin and no other junior or senior in the backfield could qualify as a passer. This season, Tom Morris, Jim Mottley, Ron Nelson, John Heyd and Alan Manzler among the top 12 backs can all pitch with varying degrees of accuracy, with Mottley and Nelson the top artists in this respect.

Belief here is that Princeton has the potential to trim Pennsyl-

MIKE STEWART
Princeton End

As it heads for the third game on its 1956 schedule, Princeton's football team ranks first in the nation in both rushing defense and total defense. N.C.A.A. statistics credit the Orange and Black with having yielded an average of only 58 yards on the ground to Rutgers and Columbia and an overage of only 123 yards total.

One of the primary reasons for the Tigers' success in quelling the opposition's efforts has been the fine end play of Mike Stewart, one of the few residents of this community to hold down a first-string position on a Princeton football team in the past quarter-century. He lives at 26 Westcott Road.

Stewart's versatility was clear-cut in Saturday's one-sided triumph over Columbia. When Lion fullback Bob Ott juggled a fourth-down pass in punt formation, Mike was on him quickly to spill him for a ten-yard loss and give Princeton possession. Three plays later, he made a pretty fingertip grab of a pass from Jim Mattley that netted 11 yards and set in motion the drive for the victors' second touchdown.

With many a T formation team featuring flankers and plays that seek to turn Princeton's end, Stewart will have his hands full while the Tigers battle to retain the Ivy championship. A guard as a freshman, he was converted to end when he reached the varsity and promptly won his letter as a sophomore.

He repeated as a junior, despite a season that saw him hampered by an ankle injury, and this year—10 pounds heavier—is set for a fine climax to his career. Number 89 will definitely bear watching.

vania, largely because it will be able to control the line play. Greater depth is also a factor working for the Tigers, as are such fundamentals as several good running backs and use of the single wing. There is a possibility, however, that the Orange and Black may have to score three times to be assured of victory—something it has not done against Penn since the 17-14 epic ten years ago this fall.

Easy Win Over Lions. A fine running attack spearheaded by Tom Morris quickly subdued Columbia last weekend, the game melting away into the no-contest category almost as quickly as Benham left with a mild concussion. Hit hard when he tackled Fred Tiley on the Tigers' first touchdown drive, Benham remained in action for several more plays but became groggy and sat out the contest from the ten-minute mark in the first period.

Shortly after end Bob Kent caused and then recovered a Columbia fumble on the Lions' 19, Morris shot three yards through left tackle for the first of his three touchdowns. Paced by Mottley and Nelson, the reserve backfield racked up the second TD, with Morris returning to beat the clock on a pretty 18-yard dash that many seconds before the first half ended with the Tigers leading, 20-0.

Shaken loose by one of quarterback Jack Sapoch's teeth-rattling blocks soon after action resumed, Morris raced 700 yards into the end zone to cap his fine performance. He carried only seven times, but averaged 19.6 yards, having a good deal more difficulty with his passing, on which he completed only one of five.

Sophomore tailback John Heyd split right tackle for the victors' fifth TD early in the final period, with Hewes Agnew wedging for the final score four minutes before the game ended. The 39-0 verdict represented the greatest margin between the two teams since 1890 and left the Lions on the short end of a 22-4 record in the series standings.

LITTLE TIGERS WARY

Meet Unbeaten THS Here Despite a victorious performance against Hamilton High in their sole Intracounty football test of the still-young season, the Little Tigers of PHS will be rated three-touchdown underdogs when tough Trenton High comes to town. The Tornadoes, all-winning after a trio of games, will appear on Harris Field at 3:15 p. m. this Friday.

Last Saturday, THS routed a completely outclassed Bayonne eleven, 33-6. Earlier, the fast, high-scoring Trentonians blanked Freehold (a reasonably impressive pre-campaign scrimmage foe here) and Ewing, defending champ in the Mercer County scramble. So the dye is apparently cast, for Princeton will go into the meeting with two setbacks (Leonardo and Peddie) on the debit side and only last Saturday's 7-6 shading of Hamilton to its credit.

Per usual, PHS Coach Joe Jingoli remained optimistic about his club's chances, this time buoyed by the thrill of grabbing a badly needed win over all-losing Hamilton. In the face of the proposed three-touchdown odds, he merely commented: "Trenton has managed to take advantage of every opportunity in each of its games. If our boys are up, we might fool them."

Jingoli stressed that there will be no fooling the visitors unless the Little Tigers can come up with "a balanced game," which certainly seems due. Elaborating, he noted that PHS has done one different thing well in every contest to date — such as its defensive play last Saturday but has yet to excel at more than one of several vital aspects of the sport in any single encounter.

Pass Defense Tops. Against Hamilton's Hornets, Princeton's pass defense was outstanding, as evidenced by the losers' 0-for-8 statistical showing in the pitching department. Also, the Little Tigers' defensive line, bolstered by Co-Captain Matt Hafenmaer's first appearance of the season at his familiar tackle slot, played good collective ball, limiting Hamilton to 127 yards on the ground. Fine defensive preparations by Gerry Groninger and George Povilaitis, assistant PHS coaches, were indicated.

While the work on defense was outstanding, Princeton's efforts on offense were practically nil. The attacking line failed to open holes and displayed a general inability to provide sufficient blocking for some speedy Blue and White backs. Princeton's poorly oiled passing machine continued to sputter. The telltale totals: 2 no-gain completions and only 3 attempts, and a mere 103 yards rushing.

PHS looked often as if it might score more than once without aid from its evenly matched opponent, but it couldn't even do so one time and to turn a Hornet fumble into its lone touchdown. Late in the third quarter, reserve fullback Vic Fasanalla recovered the bounding ball on Hamilton's 13 and Princeton registered in four plays. Tailback Dick Knowles went four yards for the TD, made possible by Bill Miller's double block of two would-be tacklers, and Ivan Riddiick, another tailback, was a surprise (and wise) choice to boot the decisive extra point.

Hamilton got its break in similar fashion mid-way through the final period. Hoping to punt on fourth down, Riddick bobbled a low pass from center Bill Dilatush that was recovered by the Hornets on the Little Tigers' 13. Three plays afterwards, a four-yard buck was good for a score, but Princeton's defense tightened once again and Hamilton failed in its try to run over a tying extra point.

Mather, Knowles Shine. The PHS defense, stabilized by Hafenmaier, was ably enhanced by Co-Captain Jim Mather, who intercepted a pair of Hornet passes at his safety post, and Knowles, who switched to defensive end and did a fine job. At the other flank, Bill Gallant contained Hamilton's sweep maneuvers skillfully and, holding down the center of the line, Bruce Larsen proved he is progresing well. Joe Nutt and Bob Strahs also earned mention for their defensive play.

Offensively, the Little Tigers didn't have too much to talk about, though Knowles blossomed as a potentially strong broken-field runner (he needs more blocking help) and Mather, operating at wingback, flashed occasional signs of deception and running ability on the PHS reverse plays. Riddick, who provided the margin of victory, suffered a slight shoulder separation and may be lost for the Trenton game.

Fullback Nick Kovalakides failed again to live up to his advance billing as triple-threat, and a bad ankle bruise not only hampered his endeavors but threatened to keep him out of the coming Trenton game. The big boy tried hard to please, but couldn't seem to get started.

Readying his eleven for the intracounty tussle at hand, Jingoli observed that the PHS lost to PHS last year, 26-20, and has been beaten six times in nine meetings since 1947. The Tornadoes will be in a customary revenge-minded mood, he added (while emphasizing downfield blocking and passing), and thus that "balanced game" will have to be unveiled.

Worth Watching

Princeton football followers will watch the progress of the freshman team with unusual interest this season, following reports that the Class of 1960 has produced better than average material. The opening contest of the six-game schedule will be played against Rutgers at New Brunswick Saturday, with the first of four successive University Field engagements set for next Saturday, October 20, against Colgate.

Indications are that the Tiger cubs are strong at several key positions, including end, center and the backfield. Names to watch for include Mike Conway and Ed Kostelnik, ends; Frank Szvetecz (brother of Army's present captain) at center; and the tentative starting backfield of Bill McMillan, wingback; Robin Prince, quarterback; Mike Ippolito, fullback; and Dan Sachs, tailback.

McMillan is a brother of the catcher and captain-elect of the baseball team and son of Ed McMillan '26. His father was an all-American center in his senior year.

HUN HUMBLED

Seeking Better Days. Pretty much undismayed by the thrashing they took last weekend, Coach Hawley Waterman's Hun School football forces will travel to Pennsylvania this Friday in hopes of upending Bryn Athyn Academy. The Johnny Huns learned a great deal while being humbled by visiting Tower Hill, 32-0, and, since their first opponent, was billed as their toughest, they will look forward to applying the lesson against less endowed Bryn Athyn.

Tower Hill duplicated its 1955 victory margin at the expense of Hun's inexperience, moving almost at will for 13 points in the opening period, 13 more in the second quarter and a fifth touchdown in the third. The Red and Black's defense seemed completely unable to cope with the first-game situation against such smooth-functioning opposition, and its offense was just as inept. Hun picked up only one first down, fumbled seven times, failed to provide its ball-carriers with adequate blocking and erred most glaringly on punt returns.

In defeat, quarterback Charley Bennett, who reversed the general trend by blocking well, and guard Stu Eisenberg, who played fine defensive ball, were 60-minute performers for Hun. Jim Hagenbuch of Princeton, at tackle, also did a creditable job on defense and Bob Gottschalk, a halfback without protection, punted beautifully in spite of the pressure on him and indicated that he will do some good running in future contests, if he is afforded any opportunity at all.

Coach Waterman reported this wek that Co-Captain Tom Tilton, the team's best lineman, probably will be ready for duty by October 20, when Hun will utilize an available date, made available by Bayley Ellard's pre-season cancellation, to meet Valley Academy in Orange, N. J. The beefy tackle has been sidelined with an injured hip.

Firemen Still Finagling. Mercer Engine Company No. 3 and Belle Mead's fire department, scheduled to stage their "sudden death" playoff in the Firemen's Baseball League last weekend finally will get the game played at 3 p.m. this Sunday, weather permitting. League officials still weren't absolutely sure about a site for the contest, but they predicted Skillman would be the place.

Actually, debate over a "neutral" diamond—not the weather—caused postponement of the title tilt last Sunday. Belle Mead, winner in the loop's Western division, objected to Princeton's Goldie Field, contending that too many playoff games have been played there in recent years. No. 3, winner in the Eastern (Princeton) division, counter-objected, then agreed to meet on the Skillman field.

Call of the Wild

New Jersey's surprisingly large number of bow-and-arrow hunters, ever anxious to prove their skill, will have an opportunity to do so starting one half hour before sunrise this Friday. That's the day the state season begins this fall, and it will continue through November 2.

Hunters must really seek the wilds of New Jersey in which to do their Robin Hooding, for the law now prohibits hunting within 300 feet of any occupied dwelling without specific permission. Also, those firing for keeps must use only bows rated at 35 pounds and must carry only broadhead arrows in the woods. Bag limit: one deer of either sex.

was yours. Simple candor as well as responsibility to your profession and the community required you to inform your readers that you had committed an error in your previously printed assertion. Instead of that you have now misinformed your readers a second time concerning this matter and, whether intentionally or not, have implied that your earlier assertion was true when printed but that the statement then reported by you was thereafter retracted by the League, an implication which in both parts is false, and which you knew was false when you wrote the sentence that suggests it.

Your friendliness to the League and the sympathetic cooperation that you have given it in the services that it seeks to render make it painful to me to address this letter to you. I must nevertheless ask you to publish it, since it is now obvious that the mischief done by your original error can be mitigated in no other way.

Inasmuch as school-bus transportation is a question of great concern to many of your readers, they will certainly be interested to know what the bill on this subject, to which your articles referred, does in fact provide. Your original article reported that "the identical bills would require school buses to carry pupils to class no matter how near they live to schools." The Act entitled "Senate, No. 378." introduced September 17, 1956 by Mr. Lynch, far from requiring the service you describe, would "require" nothing but would permit local boards of education to provide transportation for school children other than those for whom it is now provided by State aid. The pertinent words of this act are as follows: "In addition to the provision of transportation for children living remote from any schoolhouse . . . the board of education of any school district may provide . . . for the transportation of other children to and from public school. The cost of transporting children pursuant to this act shall not be included in calculating the amount of State aid for transportation of pupils."

Allow me to emphasize once more the fact that even on the subject of this act the League of Women Voters has adopted no position and has recommended no action.

A "Stoa" is not a place where people with southern accents buy things.

It is the magnificent colonnaded structure built in Athens about 150 B.C. to serve Athenians as a - well, what you guess? A shopping center!*

American archaeologists have rebuilt the largest of Athens' several stoas, reconstructed its shops and its open, roofed, 382-foot promenade that was probably not called a "mall", although it certainly was one.

Behind the promenade stood 21 little shops (weekly specials in grape leaves and olive oil?) Under the arcade, Athenian scholars lectured. (Here in the Princeton Shopping Center, scholars push shopping carts around, picking up bargains.)

So when you go to Princeton Shopping Center today, remember that people have found Shopping Centers a convenience - for 2,000 years!

Home Opener. Lawrenceville's first home game of the 1956 football season is set for 2:30 Saturday afternoon. Blair Academy, which lost a spine-tingling contest to Pennington Prep last week, will provide the opposition.

The Red and Black also dropped its first game last Saturday, going down before Germantown Academy, 3-0. A last-minute field goal at the end of the first half provided the only score.

The defeat gave the Laurentians a 1-1 mark to date. They won their first game of the fall against Hamilton High, 19 to 13, but could not sustain a steady attack against Germantown.

Ex-Assessor Backs Oldenburg. D. Stuart Gorden, who recently retired as tax assessor of Lawrence Township after serving for 22 years, has stated that "William T. Oldenburg unqualifiedly possesses the better ability to do the job" and endorsed the G.O.P. candidate for the position in the general election.

"I have examined the various educational experience and business background of the two candidates to fill the office of tax assessor, recently vacated by my retirement," Mr. Gorden announced. "My endorsement of Mr. Oldenburg is based on my knowledge, after serving many years as tax assessor, of the qualities which are necessary to do this most important job for an expanding township."

News of the Churches

Union Services Begin. Joint services of devotion for Princeton's three Presbyterian churches will be held this Sunday and succeeding Sundays during the winter at 8 p.m. at the Witherspoon Presbyterian church.

Designed to provide a quiet, intimate devotional service, the Union vespers are open to everyone regardless of denominational affiliation. The pastors of the First, Second and Witherspoon churches will alternate in conducting the services and the several organists and soloists will share responsibility for the music.

This Sunday, the Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson will lead the worship, and speak on "What Is On Your Mind?"

Unitarian Kick-Off. With a $100,000 goal before them, Unitarians will hold a Kick-Off Dinner next Thursday at the Nassau Tavern. Dr. A. Powell Davies of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Washington, D.C. will speak on "The Future of Christianity", and his address will be taped and rebroadcast later in the week by WPRB, the University campus station. The dinner will mark the start of the campaign to raise money for a church and church-school building to be erected on the corner of Somerville and Cherry Hill Roads.

Dr. Davies, an outstanding Unitarian clergyman, has held parishes in London, England; Portland, Maine and Summit, New Jersey. He is the author of many books, the most recent of which is "The Meaning of the Dead Sea Scrolls".

Presbyterial Meetings. Women of the New Brunswick Presbytery will hold two district meetings next Thursday and Friday for the purpose of leadership training. Meetings will begin at 9:30 and last through the afternoon.

The first meeting, for districts one and four, will be held at the Kingston Presbyterian Church under the leadership of Mrs. Stanley D. Matthews of Lambertville and Mrs. Henry W. Heaps, Kingston. At the second meeting, for districts two and three, Mrs. William F. Andreas, Trenton, and Mrs. Dwight Walker, Pennington, will preside. This meeting will be held at the Presbyterian Church, Pennington.

Mrs. Lefferts Loetscher of Princeton will start each of the meetings with a brief service of prayer. A business meeting will follow.

During the morning sessions, there will be leadership training classes for circle chairmen, program department secretaries, membership secretaries, world service secretaries and treasurers.

After the lunch hour, there will be a speaker—Joyce Miller of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions. A community worker in industrial areas, Miss Miller travels with a trailer chapel equipped with lectern, portable organ and movie projector. She will describe her work and the techniques she has evolved.

THE BELLS OF ST. PAUL'S: Three bronze bells for the new belfry of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church were blessed yesterday by Father Edward C. Henry, rector. Cast in bronze by the Paccard foundry of Annecy, France, the bells will be raised to the tower and hung by Arthur Bigelow, Princeton carillonneur. The largest bell is the gift of St. Paul's parishoners, the smallest one, dedicated to St. Vincent de Paul, is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow. The center bell is an old one that has been re-tuned. After they have been hung, the bells will play the Angelus each morning, noon and evening by an electric clock mechanism.

Christian Life School Opens. The five sessions of Princeton Seminary's ninth annual School of Christian Life and Leadership will open next Thursday. There will be two periods each Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8:20, and 8:35 to 9:25. Each year, over 250 Sunday School teachers and other church officers attended this school of life and leadership. The classes will continue until November 15.

Eight courses are offered this fall: "The Acts", "Survey of Christian History", "How to Teach Kindergarten Children", "How to Teach Junior Children", "Working With Adults", "Introduction to Teaching", "Comparative Faiths", and "Christian Social Concern".

Church Social . . . Turkey, home-grown vegetables and home-made pies will be on the menu of the annual Harvest Home Fellowship dinner at the Witherspoon church, to be held next Thursday from 4-8 p.m. Mrs. Ethyl Lewis is chairman. Proceeds will go to the Beautifying Witherspoon Fund to carry out church renovations. . . .

A "Firehouse Frolic" dance will be held next Saturday October 20 at the Kingston Firehouse. The Princeton Jewish Center will sponsor. . . .

Molly T. Mitnaul, evangelist Gospel singer, will be honored next Thursday at 8 p.m. with a surprise musical program at the First Baptist church. Mrs. Elizabeth Pergerson will sponsor the program, which will feature talent from Princeton and environs.

Tune in Channel Four. A film sequence shot on the Somerville Road property of the Unitarian Church will be shown on the Arlene Francis "Home" program next Wednesday at 11 a.m. The showing goes along with the appearance on the program of Peter Putnam, president of the Unitarian church. He is appearing with "Home" because the program will be built around "Recordings for the Blind", an organization of which Mr. Putnam is a board member.

CAMPUS ESTATES OF THE COLUMBUS BOYCHOIR
SCHOOL
ROSEDALE ROAD

We have had a most pleasant experience in developing this beautiful tract of land and are almost sorry that our job is practically accomplished. It has been fun.

All developmental improvements are done; water, gas and electricity to all lots, sanitary sewer to some.

At this time 11 fine homes have been finished, 5 are under construction and another 8 are about ready to begin construction. All have been individually planned for their owners.

There remains only three of the finest homesites in the Princeton area; 2 of these will be purchased by those who appreciate the everlasting enjoyment of a house surrounded by some of the most beautiful trees you can imagine. The other is located on Rosedale Road and will lend itself to your own ideas as to landscaping.
